Global Health Work in Progress (GHWIP) meetings bring together members of the Washington University global health community to learn about each other’s work. Individuals working on a grant, paper or a new idea are encouraged to present their research and get feedback.

Monday, March 8 | 1–2 p.m.

Online: REGISTER HERE

Proscovia Nabunya, PhD
Research Assistant Professor, Brown School

Suubi+Adherence-US: A Combination Intervention Utilizing Community Health Workers to Address Treatment Outcomes Among Young People Living with HIV

Leyao Wang, PhD, MPH
Instructor of Medicine, Division of Allergy and Immunology, Washington University School of Medicine

The Microbiome of Infants who were Exposed in Utero to the Devastating Hurricane Maria in Puerto Rico

To learn more, visit publichealth.wustl.edu/ghwip